Originally built in the late 1990s, this attractive detached family home occupies a particularly private and generous plot, offering spacious and versatile accommodation arranged in a traditional and practical layout. The ground floor features a selection of well-proportioned reception rooms, providing plenty of space for both family life and entertaining. The kitchen forms a natural focal point of the home, with ample room for a dining table and a welcoming setting for everyday family life. A conservatory extends the living space and provides a lovely additional room from which to enjoy views over the gardens. Also located on the ground floor is a useful home office/study, ideal for those working from home, together with a separate utility room providing valuable practical space for laundry and household storage. The property was originally designed with five bedrooms but has since been thoughtfully reconfigured to provide four generous bedrooms, with additional dressing space creating a more comfortable and versatile arrangement.
